

NEWSLETTER, REV III

Friends, the response to our newsletters have been resoundingly positive. Thank you all for your kind words and suggestions. Please keep your ideas coming as they're a great inspiration.

Again with the disclaimer, this newsletter is not meant to be intrusive, so please, notify me if you wish to be removed from its distribution. Friendship means more to me than the contents within this document ever might.

That said, I will broadcast this newsletter periodically to announce happenings and offerings as makes sense.

PROGRESS REPORT...

Q4 2012 was a roller coaster ride. Business has exceeded any expectation. I credit our recently re-elected Gun-Salesman-in-Chief with this success. Everywhere I go I see empty shelves. My distributors are having similar issues. We have, however, with tenacity & a bit of good luck, been able to get difficult to find firearms into the hands of good Americans.

I have been working with Mike Davis, the owner of Extreme Defensive. Classes have been full, necessitating the need for larger venues. I consider this to be a positive indicator of the trend of our industry & sport. These classes are not just the gateway to your Texas Concealed Handgun License, CHL, but for many, they can be the real start of responsible gun ownership. In Mike's classes you will learn common sense approaches to gun safety & ownership. And they're fun, too! Please select the Extreme Defensive link on my website.

WHY BUY HERE? (CUSTOMER SERVICE!)

Simply put; Great Customer Service

An amazing example: Steph C. recently bought a new Sig Sauer P238 pistol with a laser grip, a difficult pistol to find. Steph proudly told her Dad of her new purchase. He thought that was a great buy and asked if I could find a Kel-Tec PMR30, an impossible gun to find. It took a bit of work & luck and turned out to be fine Christmas in Mr. C's home when he unwrapped his new PMR30!

THE INSIDE STORY

"In the most simplistic of terms gun control is the ability to regularly place shots"

We're hearing a great deal about gun control. Who should have guns? Who shouldn't have guns? Who has the privilege of making those determinations?

In the most simplistic of terms gun control is the ability to regularly place shots, where you want them to be.

Gun control really encompasses a much larger scope. Our need to responsibly secure and maintain our weapons is gun control. Educating all users, new & old, on proper gun handling is gun control.

This may seem trite or remedial. Now I certainly don't pretend to know, but, just maybe, if Nancy Lanza had been trained and/or used proper gun control measures she and perhaps 26 others might still be amongst us and Sandy Hook would have no sinister meaning.

GUNS!

Few phrases can get our immediate attention faster than, "WE WANT YOUR GUNS!" Well, in this case, it's really not a bad thing. We need to add inventory. The best method I've found it to help folks turn their rarely used guns into cash. I, in turn, am able to sell them through a vast network. So, if you have a friendly little firearm that needs a loving home, give me a call. I'll work to put it into the hands of someone who will love & cherish it!

I could be wrong*

Citizens of Newtown, Connecticut will never regard Dec. 14th in the manner they did prior to 2012. I noted that almost immediately the nation's flags were at half mast. I also noted that firearms themselves would become the issue. I further took notice, on Jan. 14th, that flags were returned to their normal height and our Administration 'did' something by holding a news conference. In the intervening month I heard the most rhetoric about the NRA response to this terrible event. Wayne LaPierre waited a respectable amount of time before offering the NRA's opinions and possible solutions. He was quickly vilified. Mr. LaPierre suggested that we find a way to remove gun-free zones from our schools. He suggested that an armed presence in our schools would deter these senseless acts. He was ridiculed. He was made to sound like an idiot from those who reported on the story and those involved in Washington.

I find it ironic that those shouting the loudest do so from enclaves of security, surrounded by trained, armed people. They, of course, would never involve themselves with firearms, but they will quickly hire people who do. They try to explain the 2nd Amendment to us. They say that they will never infringe upon the rights of sportsmen & hunters. They want us to believe that the 2nd Amendment has something to do with that. They do so while completely failing to understand the purpose our precious 2nd Amendment. Not only does our 2nd Amendment protect their 1st Amendment Right of free speech, it also protects their right to free elections, where, by God only knows how, these same people keep getting re-elected.

So I suggest that the populace demand that they begin to enforce our current laws and stop wasting our time discussing 'new' measures that would have not intervened at Sandy Hook. I suggest they pass budgets and use common sense measures to handle our border issues and not institute stupid efforts like 'Fast & Furious' that result with deadly consequences. I also suggest that we implement term limits for our Congressmen, OUR EMPLOYEES, in Washington. We need to refresh our brain trust at a regular rate.

There is hope. Extreme Defensive has offered free CHL classes to Educators. The response has been overwhelmingly positive. People are taking it upon themselves to stand up to this senseless brutality by becoming part of the solution. At the same time their actions are silencing those that would deny them the 2nd Amendment Right, then, their 1st Amendment Right, then, their... you get the idea.
